Young Architects? Association of Catalonia (AJAC)

The association comprises architects under the age of 40 and organizes discussions, debates and other events directly associated with the relationship between academic training and professional experience and the problems that affect architects in their early years of professional practice. In the field of architecture, the association organizes the AJAC Awards for Young Architects every two years with the aim of raising public awareness of outstanding work by young professionals. In the professional sphere, it works to facilitate new architects' first steps by proposing tenders for young architects, organizing further training, upholding the interests of young architects, and so on.
